

The HomePlace Way is how we work.

It shows who we are.

It is our way of working.

It is what we aim to achieve by our kind of support.

We want every person we support to live a happy life doing things that are important to them.

We want every person we support to have friends and meet new people.

We want every person we support to learn new things and keep the skills they already have.

We want people living with disability to belong in the community.

Community means a group of people who live, work, or spend time in the same area as you.

We support people living with disability by:

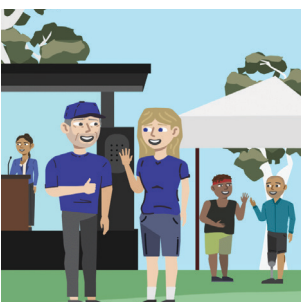

- Listening to each person.

- Being respectful, kind, and keeping every person we support safe.

- Having caring staff who have supported many people living with intellectual disability and other disabilities for many years.

- Enabling the people we support to take on more roles at home and in the community.
